National Trust Tours

Dear National Trust Traveler,

The year 2026 marks 250 years since the Declaration of Independence was signed. It feels like the perfect time to visit Paris—yes, Paris!—to celebrate this milestone. While Philadelphia gets all the credit, the City of Light largely inspired the revolutionary ideas that shaped our young nation. Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, John Jay, and Thomas Paine spent significant time in Paris, securing essential French support that ultimately helped us win independence.

Our six-night journey traces their footsteps through the city they came to love. Stand at 56 rue Jacob, where Franklin, Adams, and Jay signed the 1783 Treaty of Paris, officially ending the Revolutionary War. Beyond diplomatic triumphs, join experts for guided access to these leaders' Parisian residences in Saint-Germain-des-Prés and Passy, including Jefferson's elegant Hôtel de Langeac along the Champs-Élysées.

Enjoy a special lunch at Le Procope, the city's oldest café, where Franklin and Jefferson debated philosophy beneath 18th-century crystal chandeliers still hanging today. Many American visitors find themselves unexpectedly moved at Cimetière de Picpus, Paris's largest private burial ground and one of only two in the city. Here, the Marquis de Lafayette rests beneath soil brought from Bunker Hill, under the only American flag authorized to fly permanently on foreign soil.

This journey also includes exclusive cultural experiences. Skip the famously long lines at the incomparable Louvre, enjoying a personal staff greeting and a privately guided tour. Venture outside Paris to Claude Monet's home and gardens in Giverny. Gain special access to the lavish Palace of Versailles with entry to the King's Private Apartments—closed to regular visitors—and an inside look at the Bibliothèque Municipale de Versailles, once Louis XVI's Ministry of Foreign Affairs, where American revolutionaries secured crucial French aid for independence.

Our journey concludes with a farewell dinner at Lafayette's, an eatery housed in a beautifully restored 18th-century townhouse that was formerly the home the Marquis himself. With limited availability for this special anniversary journey, I encourage you to secure your place promptly by calling National Trust Tours at 888-484-8785. I look forward to sharing this extraordinary experience—rediscovering American history in the French capital.

Sincerely,

Meg Annacone-Poretz

TUESDAY, APRIL 06: DEPARTURE

Depart on overnight flight to Paris.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 07: PARIS, FRANCE

Upon arrival in Paris, join a group transfer to the hotel. After checking in, enjoy an optional walking tour featuring a special visit to the recently reopened Cathédrale Notre-Dame. This evening, gather for a welcome dinner. D

THURSDAY, APRIL 08: PARIS

Wander the cobblestone streets of Saint-Germain-des-Prés, where brasseries, patisseries, art galleries, museums, and theaters line the way. Pass the Parisian residences of John Jay, Thomas Paine, and John Paul Jones, the founder of the United States Navy.

Stop at the former site of the Hôtel d'York, where Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and John Jay met British negotiators to sign the Treaty of Paris on September 3, 1783, officially ending the Revolutionary War. A marble plaque affixed to the original building marks this moment in history.

Enjoy lunch at Le Procope, the city's oldest café, a gathering place for intellectuals and revolutionaries for more than 330 years. Frequenting by Napoleon, Voltaire, Victor Hugo, and Jean-Jacques Rousseau, it was a meeting spot for French revolutionaries such as Danton and Robespierre. Franklin was even rumored to have drafted parts of the U.S. Constitution here.

Afterwards, walk in the footsteps of French nobility through the Jardin du Luxembourg, pausing by the Medici Fountain, the Orangery, and the Davioud Pavillon. Nearby, visit Église Saint-Sulpice, home to Delacroix's only fresco.

Explore the heart of medieval Paris in the Latin Quarter, the city's oldest district, where remnants of its ancient past still endure. Stroll past the Panthéon, a monument and mausoleum honoring many of France's greatest figures. Pass the Sorbonne, France's oldest university, before ending the day at the food stalls along Rue Mouffetard, with dinner at leisure. B,L

FRIDAY, APRIL 09: PARIS / VERSAILLES / PARIS

Venture outside Paris for an inside look at the grand Palais de Versailles. Take a private tour of the Bibliothèque Municipale de Versailles, once Louis XVI's Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Completed in 1762, this elegant 18th-century residence was the backdrop for critical diplomatic negotiations, including the 1763 Treaty of Paris, which ended the Seven Years' War. Admire its original decorative woodwork, paintings, and five opulent rooms.

Musée Carnavalet

In an adjacent room, see where Benjamin Franklin was formally welcomed upon his arrival in 1778, as France prepared to support the American Revolution. Gain access to the King's Private Apartments, an exclusive experience beyond the reach of regular visitors.

Cross the Jardin de Versailles, the masterpiece of André Le Nôtre, where spring's first blossoms color the symmetrical avenues. Follow the Grande Perspective, a sweeping axis of pools and fountains designed to draw the eye toward the horizon. See the Royal Promenade, the Bassin d'Apollon, and the Grand Canal, landmarks of 17th-century landscape architecture.

A short distance away, enter the Hameau de la Reine, Marie Antoinette's countryside retreat. Built to resemble a Norman village, this collection of ten thatched-roof cottages surrounds a quiet lake. Pass the Mill, the Marlborough Tower, and the Guardian's House, where the queen escaped court life to embrace an idealized vision of rural simplicity.

Palais de Versailles

Lafayette's memorial, Cimetière de Picpus

At the Grand Trianon, an opulent retreat built for Louis XIV, view the Mirror Room, where he conferred with his inner circle. Nearby, the Petit Trianon, originally commissioned by Louis XV, later became Marie Antoinette's private haven within her gardens. Dinner this evening is at leisure. B,L

SATURDAY, APRIL 10: PARIS

As American Minister to the Court of Versailles, Thomas Jefferson observed the first stirrings of the French Revolution in the late 1780s, meeting frequently with the Marquis de Lafayette and other key figures. Explore his role in these pivotal years on a private tour of the Musée Carnavalet, where artifacts and documents trace the revolution's early days.

After a bistro lunch in Le Marais, visit Cimetière de Picpus, where Lafayette rests beneath soil taken from Bunker Hill. An American flag, the only one authorized to fly permanently on foreign soil, marks his grave. Dinner this evening is at leisure. B,L

Monet's Garden, Giverny

SUNDAY, APRIL 11: PARIS / VAL-D'OISE / GIVERNY

Visit Château de La Roche-Guyon, the ancestral home of the La Rochefoucauld family, an 18th-century residence perched above a bend in the Seine River. The young Duc de La Rochefoucauld, a philosopher and ally of the American cause, translated the Declaration of Independence into French.

Continue to Giverny, the Normandy village that famously inspired Claude Monet. After lunch, explore Monet's gardens, beginning with Clos Normand, the flower garden he designed and filled with roses and Japanese apricot trees.

Walk through the Water Garden, where the Japanese bridge draped in wisteria and the floating water lilies evoke some of the painter's most famous works.

Arc de Triomphe

Return to Paris, following the broad avenues of the Champs-Élysées. See the Arc de Triomphe, the monument honoring those who fought and died for France, before passing the Parisian homes of John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, and Thomas Jefferson. Dinner is at leisure. B,L

MONDAY, APRIL 12: PARIS

After a personalized welcome, enjoy exclusive priority access to the Louvre on a specially arranged tour. Admire 18th-century paintings from the Louvre's original collection, including works by Delacroix, Titian, Veronese, and Rembrandt that Thomas Jefferson would have seen during his visits.

After lunch and an afternoon at leisure, gather for a festive farewell dinner at Lafayette's, housed in the former mansion of the Marquis de Lafayette. Dine in this beautifully restored 18th-century setting, where a Neo-Bourgeois menu celebrates the depth and refinement of French cuisine. B,D

TUESDAY, APRIL 13: PARIS / RETURN

Following breakfast, depart the hotel on a group transfer to the airport. B
