Transfer from Ghent to the historic town of Ypres, one of the most thriving medieval cities in Flanders. The medieval Market Square, the Gothic spires of the Cloth Hall, and the 13th-century Cathedral of St. Martin will transport you to the city's zenith, when Ypres prospered as a center for clothmaking. During World War I, Ypres was the site of three devastating battles along the British lines of the Western Front, and you will delve into that poignant history today.

First, join your expert guide at the In Flanders Fields Museum, uncovering WWI artifacts and personal accounts that make the soldiers' experiences feel visceral and palpable. The rusted rifles and bullet-riddled helmets paint a picture of the challenges they faced, while also highlighting their bravery and sacrifice. At Sanctuary Wood (pending confirmation), walk through preserved trenches and see the lasting impact of the war on the landscape.

Following lunch, visit Hill 60, a man-made hill, 60 meters (197 feet) high, formed from the earth excavated during the construction of the nearby railway.
