Villa Mabrouka, Tangier

Dear National Trust Traveler,

Recent total solar eclipses have captured the world's attention. On August 2, 2027, the eclipse is expected to be one of the longest of the 21st century. The path of totality will pass directly over Tangier, Morocco. At 9:44 a.m. local time, the moon will cover the sun, with nearly five minutes of totality, turning mid-morning light into twilight.

From July 29 to August 4, 2027, join us in Tangier, where astronomical wonder meets three thousand years of history at the crossroads of continents. View this historic total solar eclipse from a special location you won't forget, with private rooftop access to the Cape Spartel Lighthouse, Morocco's oldest lighthouse, built in the 1860s at the country's northwest tip.

Tangier provides a strong base for the days around the eclipse, offering natural beauty, cultural immersion, and sophisticated relaxation. Matisse painted here, Paul Bowles wrote here, and the city's harbor, medina, cafés, and old diplomatic quarter showcase its cosmopolitan past.

Enjoy guided tours of sites exploring Tangier's international history, including the early 19th-century Tangier American Legation, the first U.S. property abroad, and the late 19th-century Moshe Nahon Synagogue, which preserves the city's rich Jewish history. Lunch at the former Tangier clifftop retreat of Yves Saint Laurent, Villa Mabrouka, adds a note of glamour, with gardens and sea views.

You will also travel into the Rif Mountains to Chefchaouen, the famed "Blue City," and Tétouan, with its Andalusian-style design, a UNESCO-recognized medina, and an Ethnographic Museum housed in an 1830 fortress.
